I am repeatedly discriminated by companies like _____ because of my disability - I have worked in the disability industry for almost 40 years.

When I am discriminated against, I will advocate for myself at the time and at corporate level – because I don't want this to happen again to me or another person with a disability.

I have been told because of my complaints to these companies, that they will address it.

- They deny me feedback after the counselling of the staff memberi want to know it occurred, and I want to feel safe when I enter their stores next time
- I have experience in disability education and asked for information on the staff training programme ...I have been denied this and feeling that this disability education has failed me – I could help here... yet they refuse me
- I want feedback after a complaint has been made – this should be part of natural justice.

For victims of discrimination – nothing should be done without us.....we are the disempowered, the disrespected, the discarded. We need to see justice occur. Companies need to be transparent

Kind regards
